

Serve a part-time global mission... from your home!

Help unite families—be a FamilySearch Support Missionary

Do you enjoy helping others? Would you like to serve a mission, but feel constrained due to personal circumstances, physical disabilities, or other responsibilities? If this is you, then FamilySearch Support may be the mission for you!

The service

A FamilySearch Support mission is a part-time Church Service Mission. You will be part of a global team involved with:

- Providing world-wide support – over the phone and via e-mail – to people involved in Family History work
- Helping test new products and services
- Participating in special projects

The Blessings

The blessings of a FamilySearch Support mission include:

- The joys and blessings that come from helping unite families
- Serving part-time, at a time that is convenient to you, and from the comfort of your own home
- Receiving early access and training in various family history products
- Having access to a vast knowledge base with information and answers to family history related subjects

The Requirements

Experience with family history work is a plus, but you do not need to be an expert. The following are some of the basic skills and requirements you will need:

- A willingness to serve at scheduled times for a period of 12, 18, 24, or 30 months
- Access to a landline telephone connection and a computer with broadband Internet
- A working knowledge of computers, including email and Internet
- A willingness to learn new computer programs and processes
- Good verbal and written communication skills

Where can I find out more?

Telephone: 00800 1830 1830

E-mail: support@familysearch.org

Online: <http://contact.familysearch.org>

How do I get started?

Please give us a call or send an email and someone will contact you.